NOTES

25X1

USSR-BERLIN: At the four-power ambassadorial meeting on 4 November, Soviet Ambassador Abrasimov made a determined show of affability and again pressed for an accelerated schedule of meetings. Although the ambassadors made little progress on substantive issues, they exchanged written "shopping lists" which detail Soviet and Western requirements for an agreement. The two papers are still far apart on most issues, but they provide a basis for negotiations. The papers will be taken up by the ambassadorial advisers at their next meeting, set for 14 November, two days before the next ambassadorial session. The ambassadors issued a positive communiqué after the meeting, in response to the Soviets' request for a "cosmetic" document that they hope might help the Brandt government in state elections next Sunday.
